Summary

Based on the premise that all nurses have the potential to commit an ethics or boundary violation, but that all violations are preventable, Maintaining Ethics, Boundaries and Professionalism in Nursing is an interactive, online course for nurses who wish to avoid professional lapses. Participants learn how to reduce their own potential for committing a violation and to recognize red flags in themselves and others. This course culminates with the development of a Personalized Protection Plan© that will assist nurses in upholding the ethical and professional obligations of the nursing profession.

Course Objectives

Upon completion, participants should be able to:

- Acquire a working understanding of the PBI Formula © in order to reduce their own violation potential for ethical, boundary, and policy transgressions
- Improve ethical decision making
- Develop and implement a Personalized Protection Plan © to safeguard their patients/clients, colleagues, medical facility, profession, and themselves

Faculty

Faculty for this course are selected by PBI and approved by the California Board of Registered Nursing.
